NORWICH ELKS PAY $400.
 Last of Disputed Claims in Favor of Bankrupt Estate of Late James J. O'Donovan.

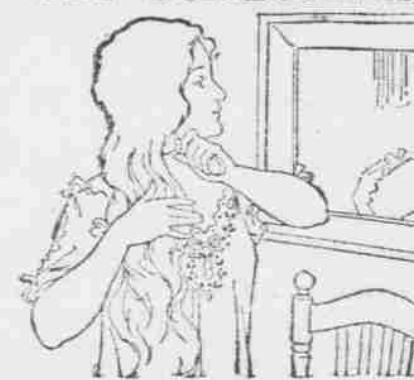

An important hearing in the bankruptcy estate of the late James J. O'Donovan, contractor of Norwich, was held in the office of Referee A. J. Bowen Monday morning. This matter came into the bankruptcy court in 1912 and was referred to Judge Bowen, as Referee Amos A. Browning in Norwich was attorney for several large creditors.

Settlement had been delayed for the intervening time because no agreement could be reached on certain claims due the estate, and there were also disputes in regard to some of the preferred claims for wages during the period of three months preceding the bankruptcy. The last of the outstanding disputed claims in favor of the estate was settled Monday. This was due from the Norwich lodge of Elks, who claimed a set-off to the conclusion of the work on their home, and the claim was settled by a payment from them of $400. Several of the wage claims were also adjusted. Michael Ring of Norwich agreed to raise $200 in payment for his claim of $288 for rent and storage, and this matter was settled. The hearing then adjourned until March 3d. Judge L. J. Storrs is trustee of the estate.

ELKS AS HOSTS.
 Latch String at Lodge Rooms Out to Women Friends of Members.

The women in the families of lodge members always like to know the inside of lodge work, and are always pleased to get a glimpse of what it is that keeps their husbands and fathers out at lodge meetings. The members of Willimantic lodge, No. 1111, E. P. O. E., gave the ladies a "peek" at the mysteries Monday night, and the affair proved a most enjoyable one. Odd Fellows hall, in which the meetings of the lodge are held, was handsomely decorated in American
